Manpower Cuts Slow Infantry Changes, Plan For Added Artillery Is Imperiled

THE Army has named the artillery battalions which will be incorporated into its existing infantry divisions.

But indications are that physical incorporation of the extra artillery units might be slow in coming, due to the forced strength reduction which will bring the Army down to 870,000 men by the end of this month.

Aim of the planned move, which will increase the number of artillery battal-

General Landon Will Head AF Personnel; Other Senior Officers Named For 3-Stars

President Eisenhower on 12 June sent to the Senate the nominations of six Air Force Major Generals for promotion to three-star rank. They are:

Maj. Gen. Truman H. Landon, Commander Caribbean Air Command, to be Deputy Chief of Staff of the Air Force for Personnel.

Maj. Gen. Landon

Maj. Gen. Emery Scott Wetzel, Vice Commander in Chief, Pacific Air Forces, to be Chief of Staff, United Nations Command, Korea.

Maj. Gen. Mark Edward

Bradley, jr., Assistant Deputy Chief of Staff, Materiel, to be Deputy Chief of Staff, Materiel.

Boeing MATS Jet Heads For First Major Inspection After Pioneer Atlantic Flight And Showing In Paris

ROYAL AIR FORCE BASE
LEUCHARS, SCOTLAND

MATS VC-137, No. 86970, has become the first U. S. military jet transport to carry passengers across the Atlantic.

With Maj. Stewart R. Spencer as Aircraft Commander and Maj. Robert J. Rudd and Boeing Pilot Bob Madison sharing the cockpit, the MATS version of the civilian 707 arrived here 12 June from Andrews AFB, Md., via Argentina, Newfoundland, in 7 hours and 19 minutes flying time.

The VC-137, one of three purchased

"White Charger" Hearings Begin; "Hump" Bill Delayed; Merger Possibility Dies

Passage of separate All-Service "White Charger" and Navy-Marine Corps "hump" bills was predicted this week as the Senate Armed Services Committee opened long-delayed hearings.

There had been speculation that the Senate might attempt to combine the House-passed "hump" measure with the "White Charger" legislation. A spokesman for the Armed Services Committee said this will not be attempted.

Hearings on the two bills had been set tentatively for 15 June but were postponed. White Charger hearings began on 17 June and the Hump proposal, which was due to follow on the 19th, was later postponed again until sometime next week.

The opening day's White Charger hearings were highlighted by these developments:

• Senator John C. Stennis (D-Miss.) charged that early flag and general offi-

Committee OK's Bureau Of Naval Weapons; BuOrd, BuAer To Be Disestablished 1 Jan

CREATION of the proposed Bureau of Naval Weapons won speedy approval of the House Armed Services Committee by a vote of 29-1 on 16 June.

The lone dissent was voiced by Representative Frank Kowalski (D-Conn) who expressed concern that the move had not been properly coordinated with the overall missile effort.

Secretary of the Navy W. B. Franke, in his first appearance before the Committee, said the merger of the Bureaus of Ordnance and Aeronautics into a single organization is primarily an internal Navy problem. It is not designed, he said, as a money-saving move, and, in fact, probably will increase costs to some extent. There will be no reduction in the approximately 200,000 employees of the two Bureaus.

Secretary Franke said the move will:

• Place approximately two-thirds of the total development effort of the Navy

Marine Corps Expands Integration Program For Junior Reserve Officers

Junior Leatherneck Reserve officers have been given an increased opportunity to integrate into the Regular Corps under a new long-range plan approved by General Randolph McC. Pate, CMC.

The expanded program makes two major changes in present integration policies. The new plan provides for:

• Annual integration of Reserve officers in their fifth year of service, immediately following consideration for selection to captain including officers serving on SWAG's and on inactive duty, and

• Removal of the 5% limit on the number of Basic School graduates who may be offered Regular commissions directly upon graduation.

The new fifth-year plan provides all Reserve officers with three opportunities to integrate. In the past, there were only two chances after completion of Basic School—once during their second year of service and again during their third year.

The annual fifth-year integration program will be aimed chiefly at Reservists serving on SWAG contracts.

Headquarters said it tentatively plans its first fifth-year integrations of officers in the 1956 year group. This group in-

BOOST INCOME LIMIT

House Approves Pensions For 200,000 More Widows; Others Win Increases

More than 200,000 additional widows and children of WWII and Korean veterans will become eligible for Veterans Administration pensions under the terms of a new pension plan (HR 7650) approved by the House and sent to the Senate 15 June.

The measure also will boost the pensions of thousands of other widows.

All widows and future widows of members of the Armed Forces who died or die after leaving active Service are eligible for the new benefits. Widows of those who die on active duty or of Service-connected causes after leaving active duty will continue to be eligible to receive monthly compensation under the more liberal Survivor Benefits Act.

At present, widows and children of veterans of WWII and the Korean conflict are eligible for VA pensions only if the ions in each infantry division from two to six, is to boost both the mobility and firepower of the existing divisions. The change will not alter present division strengths.

One unit, the Fourth Infantry Division, Ft. Lewis, Wash., was reorganized earlier this year, to make it the only existing infantry division with six artillery battalions. These are: the 2d Howitzer Battalion, 1st Artillery; 1st Rocket Howitzer Battalion, 20th Artillery; 5th Howitzer Battalion, 16th Artillery; 6th Howitzer Battalion, 29th Artillery; 4th Howitzer Battalion, 42d Artillery; and the 2d Howitzer Battalion, 77th Artillery.

The new artillery battalion designations announced by the Army are not new in the historical sense, but represent an assembly of former combat units whose lines are colored with many battle honors.

Army officials in Washington report that they can give no schedule for the physical incorporation of the additional artillery units into the remaining infantry divisions.

They indicate that full implementation of the new infantry division structure may be tied to Congressional action on the Administration plan to reduce the Army to 870,000 men by 30 June. If this plan is effected, the phase in of the infantry's new artillery support units may proceed very slowly.

It is hoped, however, that counter-proposals, such as that introduced by Representative Daniel J. Flood (D-Pa.) to keep Army strength at 900,000, might be accepted. This would allow the conversion to the new infantry division plan.

House actions to boost the Army to 900,000 men have failed, but further consideration is now being given to this problem in the Senate.

Following are the designations for artillery units to be attached to Army infantry divisions. The first two units listed under each division are now organic. The remaining are to be added.

Senator Attacks Early Retirement

Charging the Armed Forces with a "colossal waste of talent" in the early retirement of flag and general officers, Senator John C. Stennis, (D-Miss.) has proposed new retirement limitations for senior officers.

In the past, Senator Stennis has made similar attacks on military retired pay, family housing, family travel, and other programs. (See editorial page 10).

His new proposal, which he turned over to the Defense Department for study and comment, is designed as an amendment to the "White Charger" bill. It provides, in effect, that one-star officers cannot be mandatorily retired (except for physical reasons) until they reach the age of 55, and two-star officers until they reach 58.

The Senator said he had not consulted the other members of his subcommittee on the maneuver, adding "I am proposing this purely as a personal matter."

His views, however, won immediate support of Senator Strom Thurmond (D-SC).

Senator Stennis said "it is my personal belief that the laws and regulations of the Department of Defense operate to eliminate many of the senior officers at the prime of their experience. I am referring specifically to the retirement policy for general officers. A sizable portion of our generals are now retiring at a comparatively young age, in their early fifties."

Since 1 July 1956, 64 percent of the general officers retiring from the Air Force were under 55 years of age, he said. In the Marine Corps the number was 50 percent; in the Army 33 percent, and in the Navy 11 percent.

He said the figures do not include those retiring for physical disability, but they do include those voluntary and involuntarily retired.

"Undoubtedly, many of the mandatory retirements resulted from the present provisions eliminating officers after 30 years of service based on their permanent grade of either colonel or brigadier general," he said.

Senator Stennis said "no officer should be retained on active duty if he cannot fully perform his duties in the expected manner," but if "general officers are fully performing at the prime of their experience, it appears that they should be retained for at least some additional period of time."

He told Assistant Secretary of Defense Charles C. Finucane that the early retirement of flag and general officers is the "most colossal waste of talent going on anywhere in the whole world." Senator Stennis said the problem has been "on my mind more every year."

Secretary Finucane promised to study the problem and come up with recommendations. He noted, however, that one of the reasons for the early retirement policy is to provide proper promotion flow which allows the Services to keep their best officers "during their most productive years."

Lt. Col. Moore At Ft. Lee

Lt. Col. Harold H. Moore has assumed command of the 94th QM Battalion, Ft. Lee, Va. He previously served with G-4 headquarters, Military Assistance Advisory Group, Taiwan.

LARSON FOR TITAN

Larson AFB, Wash., has been selected as a Martin Titan ICBM site.

This is the fourth location chosen for the Titan. The others are: Lowry AFB, Colo.; Ellsworth AFB, S. D., and Mountain Home AFB, Idaho.

The Air Force previously has announced selection of seven locations for the Convair Atlas ICBM.

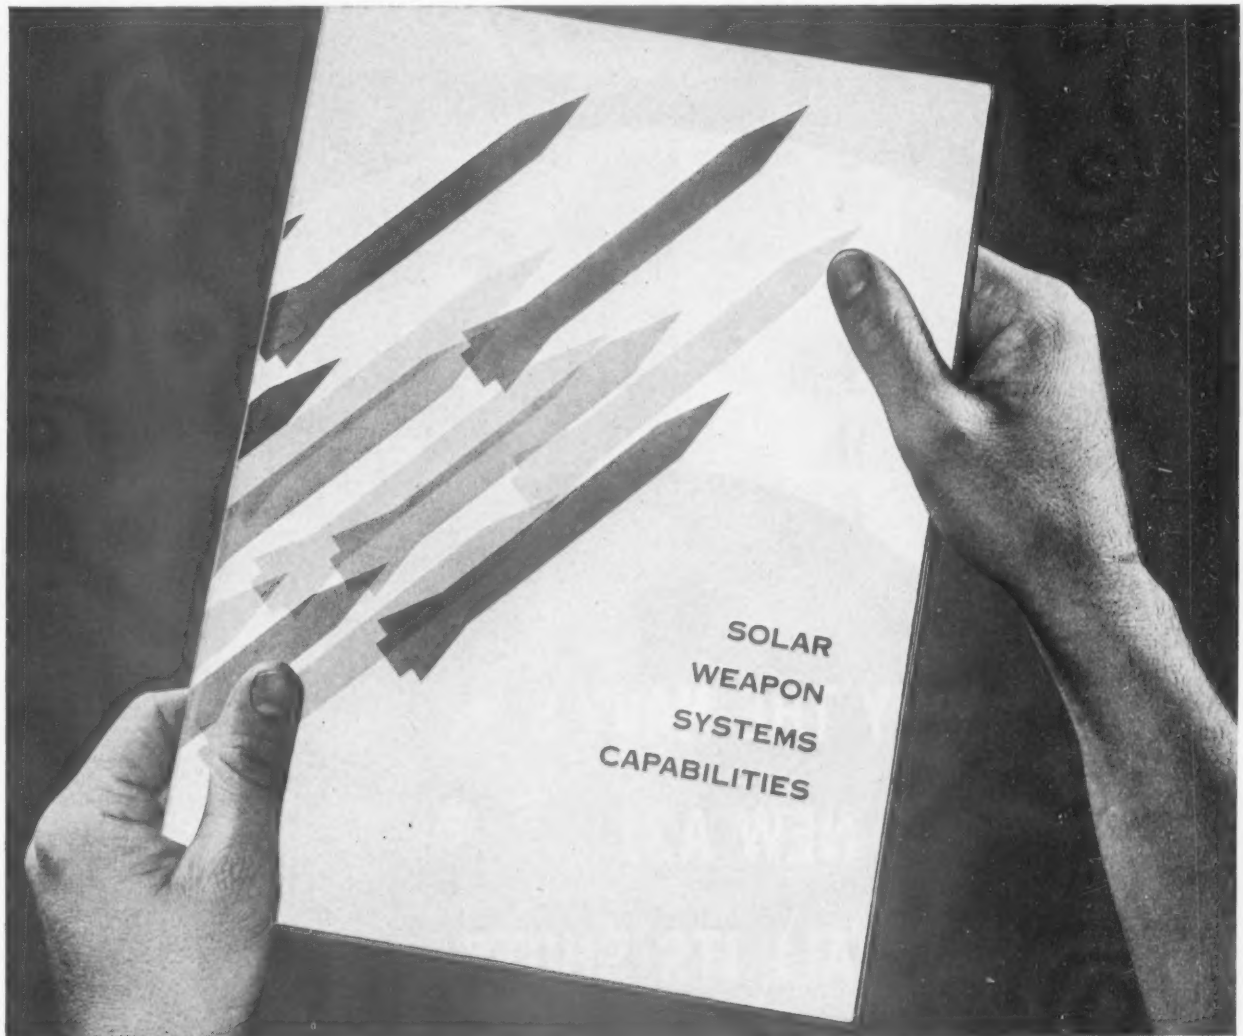

Funds for Larson are in the FY '60 military construction program.

B/G Stayton To BELUX

Brig. Gen. Tom V. Stayton, USA, has been named chief of the U. S. Military Assistance Advisory Group to Belgium and Luxembourg with headquarters in Brussels.

General Stayton reports from duty as Assistant Deputy Chief of Staff for Plans and Operations, NORAD.

He succeeds Maj. Gen. Alva R. Fitch who has served as BELUX MAAG Chief since July 1957. A new assignment for General Fitch has not yet been announced.

USMA Cadets To Learn About Army Aviation

The U. S. Military Academy cadets will get an opportunity to do a little aerial sightseeing during their visit at Ft. Benning 23-26 June, courtesy of Lawson Army Aviation Command.

Five L-19 Cessna Bird Dogs airplanes, five reconnaissance-type helicopters, either Hiller Ravens or Bell Sioux, and two deHavilland U1-A, Otters of the First Army Aviation Company, will operate 24 and 25 June off Sightseeing Field, directly across from the area where the cadets will be billeted.

The 70th Aviation Operating Detachment will establish traffic at Sightseeing Field with a mobile tower, part of its equipment for operating tactical Army airfields.

The future officers will receive a complete orientation on Army aviation—its equipment, missions and capabilities during their visit at Ft. Rucker, Ala.

RCA ELECTRONICS CUTS DOWN THE C O U N T D O W N

To our missile experts, "is it ready" is almost as important as "how far can it go." For retaliatory power, missile crews must be able to launch a maximum number of missiles in rapid fire order.

America's intercontinental ballistic missile, the Atlas, had already proved itself for distance—6,000 miles or more. But checkout and launching took several hours. So the next step in turning the missile into an operational weapon was to make it ready for quick action. RCA was selected to build an electronic system that would radically reduce the countdown time at the Atlas Operational Bases now under construction.

Now, in a matter of minutes, this elaborate electronic system can determine if any part needs attention—or signals that the missile will be ready to go.

This automatic checkout equipment and launch control system for the Atlas is one more of the many ways in which RCA Electronics works to strengthen our national defense.

under the direct authority and control of a single executive.

- Bring within the cognizance of a single Bureau most of the present areas of split cognizance in weapon systems development.

- Coordinate and simplify funding of major weapon systems, thereby expediting the development process.

- Expedite the timely development and procurement of all components of a weapons system, and

- Promote economy through improved coordination and supervision and through more effective use of facilities and laboratories.

The Navy Secretary urged that the consolidation be rushed because, he said, it will "have an unsettling effect until consummated."

He said the Navy hopes to complete the organizational structure of the new Bureau within the next six weeks and actually establish the Bureau by 1 September of this year. He said it is anticipated that the Bureau of Naval Weapons can assume the responsibilities of the Bureaus of Ordnance and Aeronautics and permit their disestablishment by 1 January 1960.

The proposal now goes to the House floor and will be subject to further action in the Senate.

INTERNATIONAL BANK

SERVES THE INTEREST OF SERVICEMEN AND THE SERVICES

International Bank recognizes the financial stability and personal reliability of ranking military servicemen—and extends bank-rate, signature-only loans to Officers and NCO's of pay grade E-6 and above through its OFFICERS FINANCE PLAN.

This policy has directly benefited more than 33,000 military borrowers in the past two years. And it has benefited the separate services as well by elevating the morale of these thousands of servicemen who found it necessary or desirable to obtain loans.

International Bank will continue to serve their personal financial interests—and yours—with low-cost, collateral-free credit. For full information and convenient draft forms, write today to:

LOW COST PROTECTION. USS ESSEX. Originally fitted out in 1799 and built by public subscription the Essex afforded low cost protection for the people of the United States. Carrying 32 guns she gained fame on her famous raiding cruise in the South Pacific from 1812 to 1814.

Eighty years later, NAVY MUTUAL AID ASSOCIATION was founded. The purpose was to give low cost protection to members of the Navy, Marines, Coast Guard, and their families. For SEVENTY-NINE YEARS NMA has continued to provide this LOW COST PROTECTION.

Write us today for our free booklet that will explain the full services and benefits of NAVY MUTUAL AID to you.

ELIGIBILITY. All permanent and temporary officers and warrant officers of the Navy, Marine Corps, and Coast Guard, including reserve officers on extended active duty, and not over 62 years of age, are eligible.

Set Up 18th AD At Fairchild AFB

Fairchild AFB, Wash., will become the home of the 18th Air Division on 1 July. SAC announcement stated that the 18th Air Division will command Fairchild units along with the 4170th Strategic Wing at Larson AFB, and an undesignated unit which will be located at McChord AFB.

Col. Lester F. Miller, present 92d Bomb Wing commander, recently replaced Col. Donald E. Hillman, who was reassigned to Hqs 15th Air Force, March AFB, Calif.

The 18th AD is being reconstituted and redesignated. Formerly it was known as Hqs and Hqs Sq, 18th Replacement Wing, and was deactivated 11 April 1944.

MATS VC-137 Makes Pioneer Atlantic Hop

a 93 degree heat and landed at Argentina —1,230 miles away—at 2112 in a reversed temperature reading of 39 degrees.

The flight was made at an altitude of 33,000 feet.

Following its arrival here, the MATS jet, which Air Force officials hope will herald procurement authorization to make possible regularly scheduled jet service overseas, was flown to London, where it was prepared for exhibition at the Paris International Air Show.

Following the jet age fashion showing in Paris, where it was to be seen with the Soviet's new IL-18 Moskva turbo-prop airliner, the MATS plane is slated for return to the U. S. and its first 200-hour major inspection.

Debarking with General and Mrs. White at the RAF Station at Leuchars, Scotland, were Col. John Baer, Assistant Executive to General White and the general's aide, Lt. Col. Timothy I. Ahern, as well as Col. R. R. Allison, assigned to duties involving the National Security Council, and Col. E. B. Rasmussen, Special Assistant to General Curtis LeMay, Vice Chief of Staff.

It will be the Air Force's plan to maintain one of the three VC-137's on constant alert for instant use by the President or another top official.

The other two—all are identical—would be used on other MATS special air missions.

Members of the National Media Press Group making the flight were:

Copter Safety Honored

FOR the first time in the history of the Air Force, a helicopter squadron has been selected to receive the USAF Flying Safety Award. Presented to the 20th Helicopter Squadron, Sewart AFB, Tenn., the award recognizes the 8,000 accident-free hours flown by squadron pilots, often at minimum altitudes in mountainous regions where dangerous air currents are a constant hazard to helicopter operations. Above, the Safety award is presented to Col. Albert V. Endress, 839th Air Division Commander (left), by Ninth Air Force Commander Maj. Gen. D. W. Hutchison at Shaw AFB, S. C. Commander of the 20th is Maj. Gregg Hartley.

Attacking Our "Arsenal Of Democracy"

There is an ominous threat to our hard-built defense industry in the current activities of the House Armed Services Subcommittee on Special Investigations and the publicity engendered by it. It has all the overtones of the old Nye Committee which did untold harm to our defense industries prior to World War II.

The investigation has grown out of the original charge that high-ranking retired officers employed by defense industries are exerting undue influence on behalf of their firms. But it has expanded to include innuendoes against former civilian officials of the defense agencies and against the organizations and associations working in behalf of the fullest utilization of industry for our National Security.

In this latter category come such vital organizations as the American Ordnance Association, which performed invaluable and unselfish work between the world wars in endeavoring to keep alive in industry an interest in defense work, often at financial sacrifice to the cooperating companies. It includes also the National Security Industrial Association which was organized at the behest of the late Secretary of Defense Forrestal, when he headed the Navy, so as to interest industrial organizations in the needs of the Navy. When Mr. Forrestal became first Secretary of Defense his interest led to subsequent enlargement to include all services. Both of these organizations have large numbers of committees whose members labor without compensation to assist the Services in industrial planning and production.

The insinuations that former officers and former officials of the Armed Services are having sinister influences upon our defense policies is insidiously dangerous. The very fact that many strictly civilian industries utilize the talents of such persons and that the Government itself has found the experience, training, and integrity of former officers of value (the nation elected one as its President) bespeaks the high regard in which they are held. In fact, considering the calibre and numbers of Americans who have served in the defense forces since the beginning of World War II, industry's field for recruitment would be pretty small if they were excluded.

In his 1955 message to Congress, President Eisenhower declared: "An industry capable of rapid expansion and essential materials and facilities swiftly available in time of emergency are indispensable to our defense."

In these perilous times it is foolhardy to tamper with our defense industries which have been built with such difficulty and which represent probably our biggest edge over potential aggressors.

People Of Service Around The World

THE JOURNAL is privileged to publish in this issue (Page 18) an article by Mrs. Leander L. Doan, wife of the MAAG Chief on Taiwan, Major General Doan, USA, describing the activities of U.S. Service wives at that critical Free World outpost. Mrs. Doan's splendid report parallels an article prepared for us by Mrs. Barksdale Hamlett, wife of the U.S. Commander in Berlin, Major General Hamlett, USA, which was published in the 4 April issue.

Mrs. Doan, like Mrs. Hamlett, tells in her own words the work being done by U.S. Service wives behind the Iron Curtain, as in Berlin, or smack against the Bamboo Curtain on Taiwan.

This do-it-yourself approach is typical of the vigorous "People of Service" programs conducted by hundreds of Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps, and Coast Guard Wives' Clubs in the United States and overseas.

During the past month, and also in this issue, we have published the names and photographs of new officers who have been elected to head Commissioned and Non-Commissioned Officer Wives' Clubs. To the outgoing officers, we extend congratulations for a job well done. To the new officers, THE JOURNAL pledges full support in keeping the Nation informed of their dedicated service to National Defense and their outstanding support of the President's "People to People" program.

Committee Needs Senator Russell's Active Leadership

We hope that Senator Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.) will soon resume the active leadership of the Senate Armed Services Committee of which he is chairman. Apparently, other Senatorial business and interests have taken so much of his time this session that he has been unable to apply, as he has in the past, his keen understanding to the problems of the Armed Services and to work to solve them.

Not only has the program of the Senate Committee lagged far behind that of its counterpart in the House, but its leadership appears to have fallen by default to Senator John C. Stennis (D-Miss), a legislator of considerably less experience in the field and one whose approach to much of the military legislation appears to be one of suspicion and criticism.

He has hit at the military retirement system, suggesting that perhaps Service families should be required to help pay the cost of the program. He has lashed the Services for having "too many" colonels and Navy captains in their ranks, despite the fact that a law which his own Committee approved prescribes an even higher number than the number he believes excessive. He has blasted the military family housing program, forcing the Defense Department to cut back construction plans which top military leaders have testified are essential to maintain a career force.

Senator Stennis also has criticized the practice of permitting families to accompany members of the Armed Forces to overseas areas. He has attacked the operation of the Family Medicare program. His subcommittee enforces the so-called "gentlemen's agreement" which prevents the Armed Forces from having the number of general and flag officers the Pentagon considers necessary. And this week (see page one) he blasted the early retirement of flag and general officers.

It is true, of course, that Senator Stennis also has been responsible for aiding in the passage of many constructive personnel measures. But the best features of these laws have been the work of the Defense Department and the House Armed Services Committee. And many have failed to fully achieve their objectives because of subsequent attacks originating within the Stennis Subcommittee.

We feel it is time that Chairman Russell took firmer control of the reins.

READERS' VIEWS

Half Greens For Army ROTC

■ Utterly shocking and demoralizing it is, that after two years foreknowledge and preparation, the Army finds, at the last minute it is necessary to do only a half way job on Army green uniforms for basic ROTC.

Army ROTC is to look patchier than ever with one class in pre-WW II uniforms, the rest in Army green.

Air Force and Navy Cadets are uniform in uniform. We on Army Staff thought that at long last we were to look equivalently bright from the logistics point of view, as our sister services but apparently it's not to be.

The Army sends out General Officers to bemoan our low standing comparatively in the public view. Attention to a few details, such as this would correct "the image" at the grass roots level.

MAJOR, ARTY, USA

Efficiency Reports

■ Recently I attended a briefing by an official DA representative from the AG Career Management Division. He said, amongst other things, that the Army efficiency report had become so meaningless that OET's had not even been computed since the summer of 1957.

If the Army efficiency report is not serving its intended purpose in all respects, I recommend this information be disseminated to all Army officers together with what corrective action is contemplated.

IN THE JOURNAL

10 Years Ago—New-type submarines capable of launching guided missiles are now being developed by the Navy, according to Under Secretary of the Navy Dan A. Kimball.

50 Years Ago—Of the two Chinese just graduated from the Military Academy it is said that one is of such high degree that the other came with him as his attendant. Finding that the rules of the Academy would not permit a student to have an attendant, both entered, and on graduation it was found that the attendant had distanced his master in scholarship.

95 Years Ago—In describing military operations, we always suppose the reader to be provided with suitable maps, and to have acquired the habit of frequently consulting them. It is hardly necessary for us to say that unless the map be so consulted, it is impossible for anyone to get an intelligent idea of the situation.

Maj. Gen. David Shoup Wins Honorary LL.D.

Maj. Gen. David M. Shoup, Commanding General, Marine Corps Recruit Depot Parris Island, S. C., has been presented an honorary Doctor of Law degree from DePauw University.

General Shoup, who won the Medal of Honor for gallantry while serving as commander of the 2d Marine Regiment, Second Division, in the battle for Bet Island, Tarawa, during WWII, graduated from the Indiana University in 1926.

Recent recipients of the degree have been Vice President Nixon and Prime Minister Macmillan of Great Britain.

Senate Committee Stalls Service Program; Many New Military Laws Await Final Action

How bogged-down is the Defense Department's legislative program?

The answer to that question comes easy to anyone who has been watching the scoreboard on major military proposals pending before the present Congress.

With about six weeks, maybe less, remaining in the current Congressional "season," only two military laws of any significance (the Draft Act extension and a ship-tonnage authorization law) have been enacted.

The three principals who have done most to stall the program are the Defense Department, the Budget Bureau and the Senate Armed Services Committee.

The Department's failure to send some important proposals (such as "White Charger") to the Capitol early in the session, and failure to press for action on these and other measures after they reached Congress, gave the legislators ample excuse for inaction.

The Budget Bureau shares some of this blame. Its delaying tactics (such as the prolonged "study" of the Pentagon paper on retirement equalization) have prevented Congress from even obtaining the Administration's views on some pending legislation.

The biggest fault, however, lies with the Senate Armed Services Committee, which, in what has become standard operating procedure, has failed to schedule hearings on many House-passed bills.

Except for action on nominations, the Draft Act, the ship-tonnage bill, and the annual military construction authorization measure (which the Senate refused to consider until the Committee straightened out its Nike-Hercules recommendations), the Armed Services group coasted along with little activity until mid-June when it finally began hearings on the important "hump" and "White Charger" proposals.

Numerous House-passed measures, in addition to the "hump" bill, have gathered dust in the meantime. They include one priority measure, the Reserve Officers' Career Incentive Act, which authorizes active duty agreements for Reserve officers.

Here is a chart giving a complete run-down on all legislation of major interest to the Armed Forces. Symbols in the various columns are: "R" for bills which have been reported; "P" for those which have been passed; "H" for those on which hearings are being held or have been scheduled; and "D" for those on which action has been deferred:

Legislation	House		Senate		Public Law No.
	R	P	R	P
DRAFT ACT—Extends draft to 1 July '63; expires Dr. Draft and Dependents Assistance Acts and continues suspension on personnel strengths of the Armed Forces.	✓	✓	✓	✓	86-4

MEDICAL NOTES

B/G Cullen Named Deputy SG Air Force; Other Top Level AF Medical Changes Set

Brig. Gen. John K. Cullen, USAF (MC), will become Deputy Air Force Surgeon General 1 August, in a series of top level assignment changes in the Office of the Air Force Surgeon General.

B/G Cullen

General Cullen, former Director of Plans and Hospitalization in the Surgeon General's Office, will replace Maj. Gen. Olin F. McIlhenny, who retires 31 July. General McIlhenny will continue to reside at his present address, 8501 Woodhaven Blvd., Bethesda, Md.

New Director of Plans and Hospitalization will be Col. Raymond T. Jenkins, who has served as Deputy Director of the same office for the past year. Col. Herbert H. Kerr, Chief of Plans and Operations Division in the Surgeon General's Office, will become Deputy Director of Plans and Hospitalization.

Capt. Jerome C. Stoopack, DC, USN, has assumed duties as Executive Officer, 12th Force Dental Company, MCAS Cherry Point, N. C. He also is Head of the Air Station Dental Clinic's Oral Surgery Department. Captain Stoopack reported to his two-hat post from the Naval Clinic, Brooklyn Naval Base, N. Y.

Lt. Col. Haskell R. Ziperman, who has been Director of the Department of Military Medicine and Surgery at the Army Medical Service School, has left Brooke Army Medical Center for transfer to Presidio of San Francisco, Calif., where he will be Chief of the General Surgical Service at Letterman Army Hospital.

Pain, its causes and relief, will be the main topic for discussion at the Annual Conference of the American Physical Therapy Association in Minneapolis, Minn., 21-26 June, its President, Lt. Col. Agnes P. Snyder, Army Medical Specialist Corps, announces.

Colonel Snyder is stationed at Fort Sam Houston as Director of the Physical Therapy Course at the Army Medical Service School.

Other Army Medical Specialist Corps members appearing on the program include Capt. Rachel H. Adams, Army Medical Service School, Ft. Sam Houston, Tex.; Capt. Esther Day, Walter Reed Army Hospital, Washington, D. C.; and Maj. Elizabeth Fowler, Letterman Army Hospital, San Francisco.

Among other Army Physical Therapy officers in attendance will be Lt. Col. Barbara Friz, present Chief of the Physical Therapy Section, Office of the Army Surgeon General, Washington, D. C., Associate Editor of the journal, "Physical Therapy Review."

Col. Bernard Aabel, Chief of the Medical Service Corps, U. S. Army, visited Ft. Stewart, Ga., for three days beginning 16 June. He saw the medical facilities of the National Guard and U. S. Army Reserves currently training there, the Fort Stewart U. S. Army Hospital, and the 714th Medical Company.

SOME TROUBLE SPOTS still are in the offing in the Hercules-Bomarc dispute, despite Pentagon efforts to quell the controversy by cutting back both programs. Congressional leaders who witnessed the unveiling of the new "master plan for air defense" think the Defense Department didn't conduct a particularly good briefing. Some came away from the meeting more confused than ever.

CONFUSION AS TO THE EXACT AMOUNT of the cutback in each program was so rife after the Defense Department briefing that the Stennis Armed Services subcommittee called two more closed-door hearings (underway as The Journal went to press) to get further details. Sec'y McElroy was urged to make full public disclosure of all but classified aspects of the plan, but the Pentagon remained silent.

IMMEDIATE RESULT of the Department's failure to make the plan crystal-clear will be a further delay in Senate consideration of the military construction authorization bill. And, it is still not known whether the Senate Armed Services Committee will attempt to amend the bill on the floor or wait until it gets to conference. Either way, part of the Hercules construction authority is certain to be restored and part of the Bomarc authority rescinded.

ULTIMATE WINNER in the Bomarc-Hercules fight is the Nike-Zeus, which was not involved. The House already has voted an additional $200 million in Army funds for the Zeus and Army-modernization. This will be accepted by the Administration as a result of the decision to place greater emphasis on anti-missile missile plans.

AN ARMY RETIRED MAJOR GENERAL participated in the VC-137 Air Force "first." A member of the National Media Group making the flight was Maj. Gen. Max S. Johnson, USA-Ret., former Army War College Commandant at Carlisle Barracks, Pa., and now Military Editor of "U. S. News and World Report," a position held by the late Brig. Gen. A. Robert Ginsburgh, USAF-Ret.

COL. WILLIAM G. DRAPER, the President's Air Force aide and pilot, will be ready to fly the Chief Executive in the MATS Special Air Missions Boeing VC-137, should General Eisenhower elect to use the new jet in any future trip. One possibility: a flight to a Summit Meeting. Colonel Draper completed the 50-hour minimum MATS "type requirement" on the eve of the VC-137's maiden flight last week across the Atlantic. The historic military flight is reported by Journal Assistant Editor Daniel Z. Henkin on Page 1.

A STRAIN WILL BE PLACED upon Regular Marine lawyers who elect to accept primary MOS's (See page 17) in law until the lawyer integration program gets into full swing. Even if all 91 Regular officer-lawyers were to choose a primary legal MOS, the Corps would still be short of its requirement. Undoubtedly, many of the 91 Regular officer-lawyers will elect to keep their line MOS'. Their loss to the lawyer structure will make it difficult for those who choose full-time legal careers as the work-loads temporarily increase pending integration of Reservists. The Corps plans to build up its lawyer force to 128 by December.

A STAMP HONORING GENERAL PERSHING on the Centennial of his birth is being urged in many quarters. A special stamp honoring Commander of the WWI armies of the AEF has been under discussion many times since his death 15 July 1948. Excuse for not issuing one was that the Citizens Stamp Advisory Committee had laid down a policy that a stamp honoring an individual should not be issued until at least 25 years after his death.

REPORTS THAT THE BUREAU OF ENGRAVING AND PRINTING is at work on a stamp honoring the late John Foster Dulles has met with wide-spread approval of collectors, but at the same time it has moved them to ask why, if the 25-year rule is waived in this instance it can not also be waived for General Pershing. William W. Wylie, in an editorial in the Western Stamp Collector, says, "Many of us wonder why a commemorative for 'Black Jack' Pershing hasn't been issued long before this. . . . If the postal service rule that a stamp honoring an individual isn't to be issued for 25 years after his death is to have validity it shouldn't be invoked in one case and ignored in another."

SAC HAD THE HIGHEST NUMBER of enrollments in the Education Services Program during the third quarter of FY '59 than that command ever had—76,973. Last year, the command had 43,239 during the same quarter. In the past year, 14,613 SAC men earned elementary certificates and high school diplomas, and 211 more earned college degrees. SAC accounts for 40% of all USAF participation in the education program, one out of three being engaged in one kind of study or another. Last year SAC had 143,740 enrollments and the total this year will reach 215,525.

MISSILE TRAINING EXPANSION in the Air Force will see more than 7000 officers and men entering training in the year that starts 1 July. This compares with 4700 this year and only about 1300 in the past fiscal year.

MAJ. GEN. JOSEPH D. (SMOKEY) CALDARA, USAF Director of Flight Safety Research for 4½ years, will report to Washington 1 July as Deputy Inspector General-Safety, as forecast in a Journal editorial of 23 May. Aircraft accidents, in spite of the increase in high performance aircraft, have dropped steadily under Smokey Caldara's dynamic leadership. In his new position, directly under Lt. Gen. Elmer J. Rogers, IG USAF, Gen. Caldara will boss safety activities embracing ground, flight, missile, and nuclear functions.

AS DIG-SAFETY, Gen. Caldara will have a special interest in the conduct of nuclear and non-nuclear weapon systems and nuclear reactors as well as safety aspects of future technical developments and their associated operational environments. Under his direction will come the present Directorate of Flight Safety Research at Norton AFB and flight safety functions within Hq., USAF; Office of the Assistant for Ground Safety at Washington; a Directorate of Nuclear Weapon Systems Safety, which probably will be located at Kirkland AFB, and a Directorate of Missile Safety, probably at Norton.

BACKED BY AN OUTSTANDING SAFETY RECORD while he commanded SAC's 4060th Air Refueling Wing at Dow AFB, Me., Col. Carlos J. Cochran has been selected as Deputy Director of Flight Safety Research at Norton. He succeeds Col. Jasper C. Bailey who goes to Ismir, Turkey, as Chief of Staff of the Sixth Allied Tactical Air Force. While Col. Cochran was at Dow not a single major or minor accident was registered by a tanker unit.

THE ARMY'S NEW AVIATION DIRECTOR, Brig. Gen. Clifton F. von Kann—he takes the post next month after serving as Assistant Commander of the 82d Airborne Division at Ft. Bragg, N. C., will strive quickly to reach accord with the Air Force concerning expanded use of mobile Army firepower aboard helicopters and light aircraft. There is no question that in the past several years, Army progress in this area has been hampered by the lack of accord with the Air Force.

THE ARMY AND AIR FORCE may be clobbered with their own night sticks. The Defense Department has prescribed uniformity in the color of billies used by Armed Forces Military Police—dark brown mahogany. The Navy and Marine Corps are in style but the Army and Air Force have been making purchases of black clubs. DoD can be expected to give the malefactors their lumps when the situation comes to light.

"DISAPPOINTED," IS THE WORD that sums up the feelings of some senior chief warrant officers upon disclosure of the Navy's plan to abolish the warrant structure (see page 17). Some senior CWO's who are shut out of the program because of the age restriction of 35, had tenuous hopes that they would be fitted into the program according to their rank. They felt that W-4's should be given the temporary rank of lieutenant commander, with each lower warrant pay-grade fitted into the program as lieutenants, lieutenants (jg) and ensigns.

BEYOND SAYING, "WE ARE AWARE of the Navy's new LDO program and are studying the matter," the Coast Guard had no comment on its plan. A board is in session to review its warrant situation. It's a good bet, however, that the Coast Guard will follow the Navy pattern. The Coast Guard, in time of war, comes under command of the Navy. Unless both Services had the same rank structure, assignment problems would be created.

THREE-STAR RANK for the prospective Chief of the future Bureau of Naval Weapons is no longer a likely possibility. When the question of rank for the head of the merged BuOrd-BuAer operation arose during House Armed Services Committee hearings, Chairman Carl Vinson (D-Ga) made it quite plain that he thinks "all Bureau Chiefs should have the same rank." That probably settles the matter as far as the Navy is concerned.

POSSIBLE SWITCH OF THE POLARIS PROGRAM to the jurisdiction of the new Bureau also has been ruled out for the foreseeable future. Although SecNav Franke said the present Polaris organization would probably not have been created had there been a Naval Weapons Bureau a senior admiral said Polaris will stay where it is until it "reduces in scope" and then it will be placed within BuWeap.

TOO MANY OFFICERS are doing the work of civilians, according to charges by the AFL-CIO American Federation of Government before a subcommittee of the House Armed Services Committee. They said that from 30 September to the end of 1958—three months—Air Force headquarters added 300 officers and dropped 200 civilians. They claimed that studies by Army management teams show that it takes five military men to perform the office management duties of four civilians.

A PORTABLE FOX-HOLE COVER is being evaluated for protection of front-line Marines. The 37"-long, 8"-deep laminated fibre-glass fox-hole roof, weighs about 20 pounds. The lightweight protective device is designed to provide entrenched Leathernecks a 360 degree line of fire—there is a rifle port cut in the front and rear of the device and two on each side. The fox-hole top is being tested at the Marine Corps Development Center, Quantico, Va.

4th T. F. Wing Gets First Thunderchief

The first supersonic Republic F-105 to be delivered to an operational Air Force unit touched down 16 June at Seymour Johnson AFB, N. C., with Brig. Gen. J. H. Moore, Commander of the 4th Tactical Fighter Wing, at the controls.

Present for the arrival of the first F-105, one of four assigned to the 344th Tactical Fighter Squadron under the command of Maj. Charles W. Barnett, were military and civilian dignitaries, including Maj. Gen. D. W. Hutchison of the Ninth Air Force, Shaw AFB, S. C., and Maj. Gen. H. Viccelio of the 19th Air Force.

The F-105 Thunderchiefs are slated to replace F-100s at Johnson.

Salute Honor Guard

GENERAL Lyman L. Lemnitzer, Army Chief of Staff designate, inspects the Anthony Wayne Legion Guard, the honor military unit at Valley Forge Military Academy, Wayne, Pa. The Guard welcomed the Army's new top officer on a visit to the post. General Lemnitzer also reviewed the 900-member corps of cadets at a regimental parade and gave the baccalaureate address to the graduates. Above, General Lemnitzer and Lt. Gen. Milton G. Baker, academy superintendent, return the salute of the honor guard.

Brig. Gen. Eric H. F. Svensson, CG, U. S. Army Armor and Artillery Firing Center, Ft. Stewart, Georgia, will retire 31 July after 30 years active service.

RA Captains Named

The Army, in Special Orders 118, 15 June 1959, has promoted the following officers to the grade of captain in the Regular Army.

The officer whose name is preceded by an asterisk has date of rank from 13 June. Two asterisks indicate DOR from 12 June. All others have date of rank from 14 June.

Navy Plans Phase-Out Of Warrants; Expands LDO (Temporary) Program

The Navy has decided to phase out its warrant officer structure, with the last warrant expected to be gone from active duty in 1964.

Under the new plan warrants and chief warrants in all pay-grades, under age 35, will be given the opportunity to switch over to the Limited Duty Officer (Temporary) program in the rank of ensign. Since the time-in-grade requirement for advancement to senior chief warrant ranks is six (to CWO-3 and CWO-4) years, there is little likelihood that the plan will have any impact on the two higher warrant grades.

Those not eligible for change over to the LDO (T) program will be retained in their present rank without loss of status until normal retirement.

Secretary of the Navy William B. Franke has approved the plan recommended by Capt. Lowell W. Williams, Deputy Assistant Chief of Personnel for Plans, BuPers. Captain Williams explained that the new plan can be carried out without the necessity of Congressional approval and is expected to get into high gear after Fiscal Year 1961.

He said that the 637 chief petty officers on FY '60 warrant eligibility lists will make their numbers as vacancies occur. After they are advanced, no others will be tapped for warrant rank.

The Captain said his committee took all factors into consideration and determined that creation of enlisted pay grades E-8 and E-9, coupled with the fact that there was pressure from officer ranks senior to warrants, created "a squeeze on the existing 5,000 WO and CWO billets." In addition, he noted that there has been an inversion of pay between the

More Marine Warrants; Other Service Plans

The Marine Corps is taking a position diametrically opposed to the Navy by expanding its warrant officer program over the next three years.

At present, there are 719 active duty Leatherneck warrants and chief warrants—131 CWO-4's, 142 CWO-3's, 298 CWO-2's and 158 WO-1's. Headquarters states that the expanded plan will be phased in starting 30 June 1960. The Marine plans calls for additional numbers of warrants and chief warrants in all pay-grades and a realignment of Technical and Marine Gunner warrant categories.

The Air Force states it "is studying the feasibility of phasing out the warrant officer category," but that "no final decision has been reached."

The Army, on the other hand, says it "has no plans to end its warrant officer program."

on active duty. The new program calls for an ultimate strength of about 10,000 LDO's. Captain Williams said the impact of this plan would be to give increased responsibility to E-9's—with about 1/3 of the existing warrant billets going to senior EM—and creation of stability in the officer structure by curtailing the number of short-term Reservists called upon to fill leadership positions. The plan calls for an accelerated augmentation program.

The Captain emphasized that warrants switching to the LDO program will have equal opportunity of promotion with officers entering the LDO structure through normal channels.

Captain Williams stressed that the decision to move into the LDO category rests with each individual.

When the program evolves to its peak strength, the line up of LDO (T)'s would be something like this: ensigns and lieutenants (jg), 3,152; lieutenants, 5,959; lieutenant commander, 662; and commander, 180. Permanent LDO status will be concurrent with and contingent upon selection to the rank of lieutenant commander.

The plan calls for activation of a temporary officer program for the Medical Service Corps as a replacement for the Medical Service and Dental Service warrant categories.

Captain Williams has been detached from the Bureau of Personnel and is en route to Monterey, Calif., where he assumes duties as Chief of Staff of the Navy Post-Graduate School.

Marine Corps Adopts Career Plan To Solve Officer-Lawyer Shortage

The Marine Corps has moved to solve its lawyer shortage problem by adopting a program that gives Regular officer-lawyers a primary MOS in law and assigns them continuously to legal billets.

In addition, the program provides for integration into the Regular Marine Corps of a limited number of Reserve officer-lawyers on active and inactive duty.

Under the old system, Regular officer-lawyers carried a secondary legal MOS and were rotated between law and Line duties. The remainder of the Corps' billets requiring certified lawyers were filled by active duty Reservists.

Letters have been sent out by the Commandant to each of the Corps' 91 Regular officer lawyers asking that they make a choice between accepting primary legal MOS' (0185 or 0195) or retaining their present MOS'. Officers who accept the switch-over will be given recurring assignments to legal duties. Those who reject a primary MOS in law will gradually be phased out of legal billets.

Headquarters points out that even if

M/G Tate to Japan; M/G Carmichael to AWC

Maj. Gen. Robert F. Tate, Commandant of Air University's Air War College at Maxwell AFB, Ala., since September 1956, has left for his new assignment as Vice Commander, Fifth Air Force with headquarters in Japan.

General Tate went to Air University following a three-year assignment in Washington, D. C., as the Air Force member of the Joint Strategy Committee, Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Prior to his departure, General Tate was presented the Legion of Merit (First Oak Leaf Cluster) by Air University Commander, Lt. Gen. Walter E. Todd, for "... Exceptionally meritorious conduct in the performance of outstanding service ..." during the time he was Air War College commandant.

Succeeding General Tate will be Maj. Gen. Richard H. Carmichael who has served as commandant of Air Command and Staff College since July 1958.

Senior USAF Men Form Firm To Provide Management, PR Advice, And Financing

A group of Air Force men, each a specialist in his category, have joined together to form "American Ventures, Inc.," with headquarters at 214 Independence Building, Colorado Springs, Colo. Most of the officers, directors and promoters of the company are now stationed or living in that area.

Explaining its plans, the firm's offering circular says: "Recognizing the difficulties entailed by speculative enterprises in the promotion stage in obtaining adequate financing, management and public relations consultation for their operations, the management of American Ventures, Inc., has created this company to operate in these fields of endeavor."

The first enterprise planned by the new company is investment in an old line legal reserve life insurance company in the promotion state. It plans to keep 90% or more of the company's security investments in this company, to assist in further financing to the company and give the company management and public relations consultation.

Chairman of the Board and President of American Ventures is Bergman Baker, a graduate of Miami Military Academy who also attended the University of Miami. During his active Air Force service he served as an administrative specialist and first sergeant. Since his discharge in 1955 he has been a life underwriter. He is also sergeant major of the 9160th Air Reserve Group in Colorado Springs. Mr. Bergman is presently the firm's only full time man, serving without pay.

Vice President is Donald N. Plant who attended the University of Montana and entered military service in 1939. During WWII he was an aviation machinist mate

800 INTERCEPTS IN 25 DAYS

F-104 Starfighters participating in Project Pat Hand—a simulated wartime evaluation conducted at Tyndall Air Force Base, Fla.—carried out more than 800 aerial intercepts with "deadly effect" during a 25-day period of all-weather flying. Air Defense Command authorities has informed Lockheed Aircraft Corporation officials.

In a squadron-strength assessment of the Starfighter's "optimum operational capabilities," F-104's from the 538th Fighter-Interceptor Squadron, Larson AFB, Wash., achieved an in-commission rate of better than 90 per cent. Lt. Col. Homer Boles commands the 538th.

During a 60-hour "intensive" mock war test involving day and night missions with intercepts at high, medium and low altitudes, 22 F-104s flew 241 consecutive operational sorties without a single abort.

Forced Retirement For Older Airmen

Paralleling recent separation and retirement changes for its term enlistees, the Air Force has now determined that all airmen on indefinite enlistments must be discharged from the Service "for the convenience of the Government" upon completion of 30 years' service or age 55 with 20 years' service, whichever is later, unless application for retirement already has been submitted.

Those who have reached either of the two mandatory separation points by 31 December 1959, Air Force Headquarters says, must be discharged on that date.

Airmen reaching either of the two separation points after 31 December 1959, will be discharged within 30 days of the date they complete 30 years' service or reach age 55 with 20 years' service.

Waivers of the new policy, now being incorporated into AFR 39-14 and other regulations, will be granted "only in an unusual case and only with the approval of the major air commander concerned and Headquarters USAF," the Air Force said.

Chaplains Wives Aid Club

Service Families Get Break On Household Goods

Military families will get a better break in the shipment of household goods under a new change to the Joint Travel Regulations, effective 1 August, which permits deduction of 40% of the gross weight of packed and crated household goods shipments and 5% of the gross weight of motor van shipments in constructively determining the net weight. The new deduction allowances were issued by Change 83 to the Joint Travel Regulations. Present allowable deductions for household goods packing materials are 28.5% of the gross for packed and crated, and 4.8% for motor van shipments.

The allowance increases were recommended by the Navy Bureau of Supplies and Accounts following an intensive study of pay account checkages for overweight which indicated that the 28.5% and 4.8% allowances often were inadequate to cover actual weight of packing material used.

The JTR change emphasizes that actual net weight will be used whenever possible and the deduction allowances will be applicable only when it is impractical to obtain an actual weight.

Present New Flag

Presentation of the new United States Flag by Secretary of the Army Wilber M. Brucker will be made at a military review, honoring the Soldiers, Sailors, Marines and Airmen's Club and held at Fort Myer, Va., 2 July, at 4:00 p.m. The public is invited.

House Approves Pensions For 200,000 More Widows; Others Win Increases

veteran, at the time of his death, had some degree of Service-connected disability, or if he had been receiving or entitled to receive Government compensation. These requirements are wiped out by the new plan.

Widows of WWI veterans currently are eligible for VA pensions if the veteran served at least 90 days on active duty (part of the service in wartime), or if he received a disability discharge before completing 90 days' service.

Pension rates and income limitations for all widows and children are changed by the new plan. However, any person who would suffer a loss under the House bill may continue to receive the pension now being paid.

Widows without dependents at present can receive pensions only if they have no more than $1400 in outside income. If the widow has dependents, she may not receive more than $2700 in outside income.

These limitations are boosted to $1800 and $3000, respectively. However, the new pension rates are on a sliding-scale basis.

At present, a widow with no dependents receives $50.40 per month if she has no more than $1400 outside income. Thus her maximum income is $2,004.

Under the new law, if she has an outside income of not more than $600, her monthly VA checks will be boosted to $60. If she has outside income which is more than $600 but less than $1200, her pay checks will be only $45, for a maximum income of $1740. And, if she has an outside income which is more than $1200 but less than $1800, she would receive $25 per month from the VA. Widows in the latter category are not now eligible for VA pension.

Widows with dependents currently receive $63 with one child, $70.56 with two children and $7.56 for each additional child provided their outside income does not exceed $1800.

Under the new bill, a widow with one child will receive $75 per month if she has no more than $1000 outside income, $60 if she has between $1000 and $2000 in outside income, and $40 if she has $2000 to $3000 outside income. Those in the latter category are not now eligible for VA pensions. In addition, to these amounts, widows will receive $15 per month for each additional child.

Thus, under present law a widow with one child and $1800 in outside income has a total income of $2556, compared with $2520 under the new proposal. For a widow with two children and $1800 in outside income, the total income is increased from $2646.72 to $2730.

Following House passage, the measure, which also increases pensions and income limitations for veterans with non-Service-connected disabilities, was sent to the Senate Finance Committee for further consideration.

Service Wives From Taipei To Koahsiung-Tsoying Are Busy With Welfare Work on Taiwan

The following article was written at THE JOURNAL's request by the wife of Maj. Gen. Leander L. Doan, USA, Chief of MAAG Taiwan.

Mrs. Doan is particularly well qualified to write on the subject because of her own many personal contributions to the success of the various activities of MAAG wives on Taiwan.

Without any prior background, Mrs. Doan took over direction of the Taiwan District of the Girl Scouts of America, including those activities concerned with the local Girl Scout Camp. Her work in this regard has resulted in the establishment of a highly successful Scout organization on Taiwan and the blossoming of a friendship program which provides for the attendance of selected Chinese girls at the Camp.

Mrs. Doan also played a key role in organizing all aspects of the housing program for Chinese military families, mentioned in the article. Here, her activities ranged from fund-raising to the actual mechanics of getting the houses built.

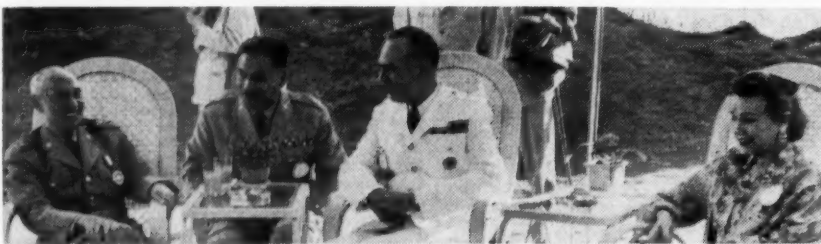

In her activities on Taiwan, Mrs. Doan has contributed not only in time and energy, but also financially to the success of the flourishing MAAG wives program.

BY MRS. L. L. DOAN

IN the Taipei suburb of Yangming-shan (Grass Mountain), American housewives whose husbands are assigned to the Military Assistance Advisory Group and other U.S. service elements on Taiwan are going about their business of making a home for their husbands and children.

On a clear day they can see the Taiwan Straits, and almost daily see jets of the Nationalist Chinese Air Force overhead and they hear gun fire of the artillery of the Nationalist Chinese Army as they train to defend their country against Communist aggression.

Why are these U.S. ladies here? The answer is quite simple. In the tradition of generations of service wives who followed their husbands wherever duty sent them, these women are keeping their families together as much as the requirements of the service will permit. They are the modern version of those wives who accompanied their men into hostile Indian country and to the southern islands of the Philippines where the fierce Moro tribesmen held sway.

Although this was the reason they came to Taiwan, once here they found many other things to do—things which but for their presence would have remained undone. Their humanitarian instincts were aroused by conditions they encountered. Although the people of Taiwan are, on the whole, better off economically than most other Asians, their country is not a wealthy one and there are many welfare problems as yet unsolved. For the service wives, there was a challenge, a challenge which they met and are still meeting.

Having recognized the problem, they have been quick to give freely of their time and resources to help their less fortunate Chinese neighbors. To their additional credit is the fact that this has been done in addition to carrying out the extra curricular activities they performed in the States. They act as scout leaders, are active in church work, and devote large portions of their time to helping our own servicemen, through such activities as the Red Cross Gray Ladies.

The great amount of the distaff effort is devoted to welfare projects. These are carried out primarily through the women's clubs. The largest clubs for service wives, United States Officers Wives' Club, presided over by Mrs. Robert M. Blair, and the Maagpies, the NCO Wives Club, chaired by Mrs. E. A. Hyndman, are in Taipei since here is the greatest concentration of servicemen.

Through raffles, bake sales, a Thrift Shop, and other fund-raising activities, these clubs are able to donate several hundred dollars every year to hospitals, orphanages, refugee aid, and other welfare projects.

The service wives are also very active in the Taipei International Women's Club, an organization which numbers among its members not only Chinese and American women, but also wives from the various embassies in Taipei. The main source of funds for the activities of this organization is the annual Children's Carnival which is held on the grounds of the Government Guest House each spring. The last one, which was held on 9 May, raised $8,000 which will go to welfare work. The carnival is arranged and run by club members and their husbands who have volunteered for the task.

In addition to these large clubs there are numerous smaller ones both in Taipei and at all of the smaller stations where there are service wives. Each of these groups has its own special charities, usually tied in with the Chinese organizations with which their husbands work. For example, the Navy Wives Welfare Group in Taipei, under the leadership of Mrs. Roland N. Smoot, wife of Vice Admiral Smoot, Commander of the U.S. Taiwan Defense Command, has assumed the task of helping the families of Chinese Navy personnel at Keelung, the seaport of Taipei.

From Taipei at the north end of the island to the Koahsiung-Tsoying area in the south, women of all services are giving their support to hospitals, orphanages, housing settlements, nurseries, and other philanthropic works. A recent example of the work done by these smaller groups was in connection with a housing project in the suburbs of Taipei for the families of Chinese enlisted men. Housing for enlisted families and refugees from Kinmen is one of the most critical morale problems currently facing the Chinese forces. The MAAG Headquarters Officers Wives group, composed of Army, Navy, Marine and Air Force Wives, heard of this and raised enough money to build ten additional sets of quarters in the housing project.

Besides the work of the clubs, many of the women have taken on their own individual tasks. For example, Mrs. John A. Gray, wife of Commander Gray, USN, Navy Section, MAAG, is a qualified physical therapist, who has devoted herself to the full time job of helping polio stricken children at the Taiwan University Hospital. To insure continuation of the work when she leaves, she is training others to take her place when her husband is ordered back to the States. Many other wives are acting as volunteer instructors in English language courses at Chinese military schools. Typical of this group are Mrs. Albert S. Britt, wife of the MAAG Chief of Staff, and Mrs. Dwight Sager, wife of Sergeant First Class Sager.

By their activities on Taiwan, our American service wives are making a positive contribution to our nation's efforts in Asia. Beyond the actual and visible good they have done is the long-range benefit of better understanding that they have established between the peoples of the United States and China. On their departure, they leave behind them a large reservoir of good will for the United States built up by their selfless humanitarian efforts.

Army Wives Council Adopts New Arms

The Army Wives Council of Washington, D. C., has adopted a new coat of arms designed by the Council's past president Mrs. Hoy D. Davis, jr.

Pictured herewith, the emblem symbolizes the united spirit of the council, composed of representatives of Army wives' groups in and near the Washington, D. C., area.

The official description of the "emblem" notes that it: "shall be used to perpetuate the name Army Wives Council and also signifies the organized activities of wives of officers of the Army of the United States. The symbols shall be the Lozenge bearing a Distaff, signifying the female side of the house. A Cinquefoil signifies the strength and endurance of the plum blossom the five points of which represent Civic Promotion, Cultural Endeavor, Philanthropy, Heritage and the Motto "Combined Effort to Serve Others". The Fusil, a modified Cross, signifies fidelity to the four points of Strength of Unification, Responsible Leadership, Sustaining Interest, and Voluntary Service.

"The colors shall be: Black for Dignity; White for Purity; and Gold for Achievement."

Ft. Lee Red Cross Workers Given Honors

FORT LEE, VA.—The Petersburg-Dinwiddie-Fort Lee chapter, American Red Cross passed out kudos to ardent workers and supporters at the annual meeting of the chapter.

Fort Lee came in for a lion's share of recognition, when Maj. Gen. Alfred B. Denniston, commanding general of the QM Training Command and Fort Lee, presented certificates of appreciation to Col. and Mrs. George Horsfall, Lt. Col. Lewis H. Youngblood, Capt. Ernest E. O'Dell and The Lee Traveller.

Mrs. Horsfall was cited by national Red Cross for her services as chairman of volunteers, Fort Lee unit, for the past three years; Col. Horsfall by Eastern Area Red Cross for "outstanding support and interest in Red Cross activities throughout his 30-year military career."

The couple, who will leave the area upon the colonel's retirement late this month, were further honored by the chapter at a surprise reception following the meeting.

Chapter appreciation went to Lt. Col. Youngblood and Capt. O'Dell for their consistent support of Red Cross activities.

A special nod was given The Lee Traveller for feature stories on the local blood donor recruiting program. Fort Lee personnel donated 2,576 pints of blood to the Red Cross blood program.

A finale to the meeting was the capping of 18 new staff aides in the Fort Lee unit conducted by Mrs. Denniston, honorary chairman of volunteers who marks her 16th year as a Red Cross worker; Maj. Regina A. Bennett, chief nurse, U. S. Army Hospital; and Mrs. Howard W. Hembree, chairman of staff aides.

The new staff aides, who recently completed a training course, are: Mrs. Carl Ashline, Mrs. Ernest H. Beverly, Mrs. Alfred K. Buchanan, Mrs. John E. Cogle, Mrs. John J. Coughlin, Mrs. D. O. Crutchley, Mrs. James D. Edgar, Mrs. W. C. Feagans, Mrs. Marie W. Keyes, Mrs. George D. Jacobs.

Also, Mrs. Paul A. Kunkle, Mrs. Joseph Macidull, Mrs. John L. Martin, Mrs. Arthur H. Nelson, Mrs. Gerald M. Rubenstein, Mrs. Franklin E. Scott, Mrs. Burdell Spencer and Mrs. William K. Thomas.

Mrs. Roy Linder, incoming chairman of volunteers at Fort Lee, headed arrangements for the meeting.

D. C. OVER THE TOP FOR NAVY RELIEF

Final returns from the 1959 Navy Relief Fund Drive in the Washington area indicate that the Navy Department has gone over the top, it is announced by RADM. E. J. Peltier, CEC, USN, Navy Department Chairman and Chief of the Bureau of Yards and Docks. Reports received from the Navy Bureaus and Offices show that donations totaled 109% of the goal set for 1959 in this area.

The total reported amount received to date is $23,192.03. Receipts for the 1958 drive totaled $19,368.96. It had been hoped that this year's fund drive would total 10% more than that figure or approximately $21,300.

White Sands Change

COL. Paul W. Albert has taken command of the Army Signal Missile Support Agency, White Sands Missile Range, N. M., succeeding Europe-bound Col. John P. McGovern.

Former Deputy Commander of the Army Signal Research and Development Laboratory, Ft. Monmouth, N. J., Colonel Albert is shown above (left) as he accepted the command of the Agency from Colonel McGovern.

During Colonel McGovern's command, the Agency went through an intensive period of expansion in which its strength was enlarged to 2,200 by the addition of several hundred personnel. Its radar coverage was extended to cover an area of 160,000 square miles, with monitoring stations recording transmissions from all U. S. and Russian satellites.

The agency has also conducted a meteorological rocket firing program to collect data from up to 120 miles in the upper atmosphere.

Two Make Major

Regular Army promotions to the grade of major have been announced for David J. Nicol, Infantry, and Frank D. Stevens, Signal Corps, in Special Orders No. 118, 15 June 1959. They will have dates of rank from 14 and 13 June, respectively.

Nike-H To Alaska

The first surface-to-air missile defenses have moved into central Alaska as part of the North American Air Defense Command system.

Maj. Gen. Gilman C. Mudgett, Commanding General of the U. S. Army in Alaska, has announced that the Army's Nike-Hercules missiles now guard the Fairbanks-Ladd Air Force Base-Eielson Air Force Base area under the unified Alaskan Command of Lt. Gen. Frank A. Armstrong, Jr., who also is a NORAD region commander.

The defensive missile sites are manned by the 2d Missile Battalion, 562d Artillery, and are similar to those of the U. S. Army Air Defense Command in the continental United States and in Greenland.

Retired Officers In Industry Must Tell Defense Contract Roles By 25 June

The most comprehensive list ever compiled of retired members of the Armed Forces working for Defense industries will be put together late this month by the House Armed Services Subcommittee on Special Investigations.

Included on the list will be the name of every officer in the rank of major/lieutenant commander or above who works for one of the hundred largest Defense contractors. Also included will be the names of officers who are consulted or retained by these firms.

The Subcommittee has sent three different types of questionnaires to all hundred firms.

One is to be filled out by the contractor, another by retired officers, and a third by former civilian officers or employees of the Government.

The Subcommittee has requested that the completed forms be returned by 25 June so they can be studied by the committee staff before hearings are opened the first week in July.

The officer-questionnaire—a four-page form—has 24 blanks which must be filled in. Officers must list their name, address, retired rank, former Service, retirement date, amount of monthly retired pay, and tell whether their retirement was voluntary or involuntary. If involuntary, they must explain in detail.

They also are required to tell whether they are totally or partially disabled (including percentage) and what and where were their last two duty assignments.

Questions pertaining to their employment by private industry ask when they were employed and by what company or companies, what compensation they receive or have received, and what their title is, if any.

They are required to give a "precise and complete statement" of the work which they perform and to tell whether they have ever "solicited or participated in any discussions, oral or written concerning sale, use, adaptation, modification, improvement, suitability, development or research of any article, plan, process, or program with any officer or employee of the Department of Defense" at any time since retirement, and at any place, on behalf of any company, organization, or themselves.

If the answer to this question is yes, they must relate the details and identify the persons with whom the exchanges took place or the circumstances under which they occurred.

The Subcommittee also wants to know if any Defense Department contract was awarded or committed after any of these discussions.

Officers also are asked to list Defense contracts which their companies hold, and to outline the duties they perform or work or service they render with respect to Defense contracts.

Another question requires officers to name Government officers, employees or representatives with whom they consult, confer or discuss any matter related to the performance of Defense contracts.

Question 24—last on the list—asks if they have notified Service personnel officers of their present employment and duties.

The questionnaire for former officers and civilian employees of the Government follows this same general pattern but contains only 16 questions.

The questionnaire for Department of Defense prime contractors asks the firms to list all of their uncompleted Defense contracts, give their gross value, and list all subcontractors who have subcontracts with a gross value of $1 million or more.

In addition, the firms must provide a list of all retired officers in the rank of major or above and former civilian officers or employees of the Government who are now employed by them.

USMC Retires 32 Officers In June

Lt. Gen. Homer L. Litzberg, Marine Inspector General, heads the list of 32 officers who ended their careers 1 June.

Included on the list was one brigadier general, one colonel, four lieutenant colonels, four majors, seven captains, three 1st lieutenants, three 2d lieutenants and eight chief warrants.

The officers shown below retired for the indicated reasons:

30 Years Service—Col. Saville T. Clark.

20 Years Service—Brig. Gen. Herbert C. Freuler; Lt. Col. Clarke J. Bennett, Frank Johnson, Ralph B. Neal and Glenn L. Todd; Maj. Thurston B. Stidham, Kenneth M. Stayer and Thomas B. Lenhart; Capt. Albert B. Moehle, Patrick D. Smith, Martin S. Christie, Maurice Brassette, Jr., Roy C. Allen and Gerald W. Hines; and CWO's William H. Oritz, Walter J. Baade, James Seagraves, Edward W. Mooney, George H. Bigelow and Leslie E. Derrington.

Temporary Disability—Lt. Gen. Homer L. Litzberg; Capt. Billy W. Ray and Doyle M. Ferrell; 1st Lt. Philip H. Neubig; 2d Lt. Gary W. Long; and CWO's Frank H. Russell and Beauford Griffin.

Permanent Disability—Maj. Loy L. Doggett; 1st Lt. Alvin T. Maxwell and Lawrence A. Van Gorder; and 2d Lt. Roy N. Miles and George A. Crady.

Col. Ratcliffe Directs Instruction at USAMS

Colonel Ratcliffe previously served as the Chief of USAMS Management Functions Division.

Selection Boards Meet To Pick Rear Admirals

The Navy will convene selection boards in July to choose active duty captains (except TARS) for advancement to two-star rank.

The Line board meets 7 July and will consider all four-stripe officers with dates of rank of 1 July 1957, or earlier. The promotion zone extends from Capt. Hal Knox Edwards, Lineal No. 00358-80, through Capt. Donald Whitley Todd, Lineal No. 00362-94, in the 1 Jan. 1959 Navy Register. All officers to be considered are from Year Group 1931.

The selection zone contains 176 officers.

Medical, Supply and Civil Engineer Corps boards to choose rear admirals meet 14 July. Eligible officers include those with dates of rank of 1 July 1957, or earlier. The junior officer in each Staff Corps promotion zone is: MC, Leo E. Potter; SC, Frederick D. Witzel; and CEC, Ralph N. Ernest.

N. Y. Retired Elect Lt. Gen. Crittenger

Retired officers living in the New York metropolitan area met recently at Governors Island, and organized the Knickerbocker Chapter of the Retired Officers Association. A Constitution and By-Laws were drawn up and adopted, supporting the objectives and policies of the national organization.

Lt. Gen. Willis D. Crittenger, USA-Ret., and formerly in command of the First Army, was elected President of the Chapter.

As First Vice President, the group elected RADM. Roy T. Cowdrey, USN-Ret., and formerly in command of the Brooklyn Navy Yard; and as Second Vice President, Maj. Gen. Robert E. Condon, USAF-Ret., and now the Director of Civil Defense in the City of New York.

NATO's ultra-modern communications system connecting Paris, Naples and Izmir, Turkey has been put into operation in Naples by SHAPE's Chief Signal Officer, Maj. Gen. Victor A. Conrad, USA.

The first link in a projected Europe-wide network, the 1600-mile radio communications system was designed and installed by Page Communications Engineers, Inc., of Washington, D. C. Page is currently training NATO personnel and nationals of host countries which made land available for the terminals in the maintenance and operation of the system.

Among the top military and civilian personnel attending the turnover ceremonies in Naples were Air Vice Marshal V. S. Bowling, RAF; Maj. Gen. W. B. Yeager, Chief of Staff, AFSOUTH; Air Marshal C. R. Dunlop, RCAF; Lt. Gen. Paul D. Harkins, Commander, LANDSOUTHEAST; Dr. G. J. Sizoo, President of the Dutch Defense Research Institute; and Dr. J. Piket, Director, SHAPE Air Defense Technical Center at The Hague, which was responsible for implementing the project for NATO.

Foreign Notes

The flag of the Republic of West Germany was presented to the personnel of Luke AFB, Ariz., during Wing Review ceremonies recently. Maj. Hans-Gerhardt Opel, liaison officer with the German Military Mission to the United States, presented the flag on behalf of the people of the West German Republic to Col. James W. Chapman, Jr., Luke Wing Commander, "as a token of appreciation for the great service you are rendering the West German Republic in teaching it's young pilots to fly the aircraft."

Maj. Gen. Charles L. Dasher, commanding general of the U. S. Army Caribbean, delivered the graduation address in the Spanish language to Latin American students from 16 American republics who completed courses at the U. S. Army Caribbean School, Fort Gulick, C. Z., recently.

Rear Admiral Axel Schmidt, Royal Danish Navy, Greenland Island Commander, was a recent visitor at SAC Headquarters, Offutt AFB, Neb. Accompanied by his adjutant, Lt. Cmdr. C. F. A. Castenskiold, Admiral Schmidt was greeted by Lt. Gen. Francis H. Griswold, vice commander in chief of SAC, and—following a general orientation briefing on Strategic Air Command—toured the underground command post.

Six NATO nations rendered full military honors to Celal Bayar, President of Turkey, during a visit which he made recently to the Headquarters of Admiral Charles R. Brown, USN, Commander-in-Chief, Allied Forces Southern Europe, in Naples, Italy. More than 200 servicemen of France, Greece, Italy, Turkey, the United Kingdom and the United States saluted the Turkish President, who inspected the colorful uniformed, international group.

United Kingdom National Day, the official birthday of Queen Elizabeth II, was observed at the headquarters of Admiral Jerauld Wright, USN, NATO's Supreme Allied Commander Atlantic, at morning colors, 12 June. Vice Admiral W. J. W. Woods, Royal Navy, Deputy SACLANT, presented the United Kingdom colors to a U. S. Marine Corps Color Guard for hoisting with the flags of the other 14 NATO nations which are flown at SACLANT headquarters. Mr. H. R. Henshaw, British Consul in Norfolk, represented the United Kingdom at the ceremonies.

Air Materiel Command's Directorate of Plans and Programs was host at a conference 16 through 19 June, attended by representatives of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization Maintenance and Supply Support Agency, and twelve European nations. Purpose of the meeting is to provide a personal knowledge of advanced logistic support systems and techniques of weapon system management. Conferees will review development and use of these management tools at AMC. Lt. Gen. Van Dun of the Netherlands was the ranking member of the visiting group. From there the party went to New Orleans and then to AMC's Mobile Air Materiel Area, Brookley AFB, Ala.

The Chief of Staff of the Japan Air Self Defense Force paid honor to U. S. war dead buried at National Memorial Cemetery of the Pacific, Honolulu during his recent visit. Accompanying General Sanagi to the impromptu ceremony were Col. Sukuyuki Takagi, Chief of the Defense Section, Japan Air Self Defense Force; Col. Masahiro Sumi, Senior Aide to General Sanagi; Mr. Hisaji Hattori, Japanese Consul General in Honolulu; and Col. Robert G. Emmens, U. S. Air Attache in Tokyo. General Sanagi and his party was at Honolulu for a week's visit as guests of General Laurence S. Kuter, Commander in Chief, Pacific Air Forces.

Eight years of serving as a deterrent to Communist aggression will be recorded in the military history of NATO 20 June, when representatives of six nations join in a colorful ceremony marking the eighth anniversary of Allied Forces Southern Europe in Naples. Admiral Charles R. Brown, Commander-in-Chief of the Southern command, will speak briefly. Several hundred members from the six Allied nations of Italy, Greece, Turkey, France, the United Kingdom and the United States, will parade together before an estimated 2,000 spectators and high ranking military and civic dignitaries.

Earl Harding Tells Story Of Panama

The history and current problems of America's sea lifeline through the Panama Canal are told in a new volume by Earl Harding, veteran journalist and expert on Panama affairs.

Titled "The Untold Story of Panama" (New York: Athene Press) the work considers in detail the political and financial background of the Panama Revolution and U. S. acquisition of the Panama Canal Zone, as well as the important aspects of Panamanian history up to the present time.

Special importance is attached to the status of the Canal by the author, who stresses the current danger to U. S. interests in Panama posed by the Egyptian seizure of the Suez Canal and the continuing unrest in the Central American nations.

B/G Rich New Commandant USMA Cadets; B/G Richardson To Korea; Three Retire

Brig. Gen. Charles W. G. Rich has been named Commandant of Cadets at the U. S. Military Academy, effective 1 September.

General Rich, currently Assistant Division Commander, 101st Airborne Division, Ft. Campbell, Ky., will succeed Brig. Gen. John L. Throckmorton, who has served as Commandant of Cadets since April, 1956.

General Throckmorton will report to Ft. Campbell in September, succeeding General Rich as Assistant Division Commander, 101st Airborne Division.

Brig. Gen. James A. Richardson, 3d, Commanding General, Frankford Arsenal, Philadelphia, has been assigned to the Eighth U. S. Army, Korea, effective in October.

Brig. Gen. Wesley T. Guest, Commanding General, Sacramento Signal Depot, Sacramento, Calif., will retire 31 July after more than 38 years active service.

Brig. Gen. John D. F. Phillips, Ft. Hood, Tex., will retire 31 July after 30 years active service.

Brig. Gen. Eric H. F. Svensson, Commanding General, U. S. Army Armor and Artillery Firing Center, Ft. Stewart, Ga., will retire 31 July after 30 years active service.

From Hand Grenades To Atomic Demolition, Army Engineers Show Their Combat Ability

FT. BELVOIR, VA. WHETHER there is a call for atomic demolition teams or just old-fashioned barbed wire, the Army Engineers will be on the spot to support modern battlefield operations.

They demonstrated their ability at a special press demonstration of the most modern engineer techniques at the Engineer Center here.

For the Missile Age Army, the Engineers have developed and have used

Major feature of the day-long press briefing was a mock battle in which an engineer platoon demonstrated its support of both offensive and defensive ground operations.

It was this part of the tour, enlivened by simulated atomic bomb blasts, flame throwers, the Army's latest mine-clearing "snakes" and a large variety of construction and demolition equipment, that aroused greatest interest among the spectators.

A JOURNAL

modern infra-red equipment to fuel Nike and other missiles and prepare them for firing entirely in the dark.

In strictly ground operations, they are prepared to lend a swift assist with everything from mechanical foxhole digging to large-scale aerial mine-laying operations with helicopters. Their demolition equipment ranges from hand grenades to the most modern atomic bombs.

Traditional engineer activities of road building and the moving of earth and obstacles were demonstrated for the press by a contingent under the direction of Maj. Richard Van Campen, an instructor at the Engineer School here.

Included in this equipment was the Caterpillar D-8 crawler tractor, which, Major Van Campen told THE JOURNAL, "will provide us with the maximum power available now in the Army." He also pointed out the Caterpillar DW-20 rubber-tired tractor, which he said is "proving to be one of the most efficient tractors the Army has."

RAdm. Long Controls BuSanda Transportation

RAdm. Thomas A. Long, SC, Fleet and Force Supply Officer on the Staff of Commander-in-Chief, and Commander Service Force, both Pacific Fleet, has succeeded RAdm. Edward F. Metzger as Assistant Chief for Transportation in the Bureau of Supply and Accounts.

Admiral Metzger who had been filling a two-hat billet, retains his position as Assistant Chief for Supply Management.

Admiral Long, USNA '33, later transferred from the Line to the Supply Corps. He attained two-star rank 1 July 1958.

He is married to the former Miss Beth Trailkill of Swayzee, Ind. The Long's have five children and maintain a permanent residence in Sunnyvale, Calif.

Adm. Long

Two Flag Officers Are Reassigned

RAdm. Thomas H. Moorer, USN, received orders as Commander, Carrier Division Six, based at Mayport, Fla., and RAdm. Harry Smith, USN, has been ordered as Deputy Chief of Staff, Commander in Chief, Allied Forces, Southern Europe.

Admiral Moorer will relieve RAdm. George W. Anderson, Jr., USN, in July or August, while Admiral Smith will relieve RAdm. Ignatius J. Gallatin, USN, in October or November.

No relief has been announced to assume Admiral Moorer's present position as Assistant for War Gaming Matters, Naval Operations, Navy Department. Relieving Admiral Smith in his present assignment as Commander Destroyer Flotilla Four, based at Norfolk, Va., will be RAdm. Denys W. Knoll, USN, who is presently serving as Director Fleet Development and Maintenance Division, Naval Operations.

New assignments for Rear Admirals Anderson and Gallatin have not been announced.

INDUSTRY IN DEFENSE

NATO MISSILE—This Martin-built TM-76A Mace tactical missile, shown, is now in Paris for display at the 23d International Air Exposition saluting the 10th anniversary of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. It is among the first to arrive in Europe as replacement for TM-61 Matadors in Tactical Air Command field forces. It is capable of carrying a conventional or nuclear warhead, and is equipped with an ATRAN (map-matching) guidance system for penetrating enemy defenses on either low or high-altitude counter-bombardment missions by day or night and in any kind of weather.

Bell Convertiplane Does Power-Off Shift From Wing Flight To Copter Autorotation

Bell Helicopter's XV-3 Convertiplane has scored an aviation first by accomplishing a power-off reconversion from airplane to helicopter autorotation flight during tests at Edwards AFB, Calif.

The feat showed that even if the ship loses all power while cruising as an airplane it can reconvert its tilting propellers upward to helicopter configuration and make a safe autorotation landing. A minimum altitude of about 1,500 feet is required for the maneuver.

Loss of only one of the two engines will allow the same conversion with nearly zero altitude loss. Testing of the convertiplane is scheduled to continue through this month at Edwards, after which it will undergo a further evaluation by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Raytheon ASW Center Near Newport

Raytheon Manufacturing Company has announced plans to establish "the nation's first integrated electronic anti-submarine warfare and sonar center by industry," according to its president C. F. Adams.

The new Anti-submarine-warfare center will be located at Portsmouth, R. I., near the Newport Naval Base. It will be built in two increments on a 100-acre site, with the first 160,000 square foot structure to be started in the near future.

Head of the Center, which will be established as a Raytheon sub-division, will be W. Rogers Hamel.

Aerojet Stresses Space, Army Work

Increased emphasis on space and also on the needs of the Army is planned to result from two organizational changes in the Aerojet-General Corporation, Azusa, Calif.

To strengthen the company's position for assuming a larger role in the Nation's space programs, it has established a new Space Technology Division under the direction of Mr. Y. C. Lee. The division, operating under the company's Space Systems Directorate, will perform research and development on electrical and other advanced propulsion systems, space systems and all other areas of space technology.

Aerojet's recent purchase of the Rheem

Manufacturing Company's Defense and Technical Products Division, at Downey and Riverside, Calif., A-G President Dan A. Kimball said, will allow the company to carry on major Army programs, in addition to those now in progress for the Air Force and Navy. At the Downey plant, he said, "we can devote a lot of effort to the Army's needs."

Mr. Kimball announced that L. Wayne Mullane, Assistant General Manager of Rheem's Defense and Technical Products Division since 1955, has been named Manager of the Downey facility, with G. Graham Whipple, former Operations Manager of Aerojet's Azusa plant, as Assistant Manager.

Inspect Polaris Development Facilities

12 MAN A-SUBS

Crews of atomic submarines may be reduced from their present 100-man strength to 12 men as the result of a project being conducted jointly by the Navy and Industry.

This was revealed in an announcement from the Electric Boat Division of General Dynamics Corporation, Groton, Conn., selected by the Office of Naval Research to manage the industry-Navy team working on a submarine integrated control system (SUBIC).

"Target date for placing the integrated control system in a nuclear submarine is 1964 and the project promises to be of importance in both small 'killer' (anti-submarine) submarines and the larger ballistic missile-firing subs," the company said.

Quality Control Wins Recognition For Nine

John J. Riordan, staff director for inspection and quality control, Department of Defense, was among nine to be recognized at the recent annual national meeting of the Aircraft and Missile Division of the American Society of Quality Control, held at Cleveland, Ohio.

Paul E. Allen, Manager of quality control at Beech Aircraft, and chairman of the division, said the honor was given in recognition of Riordan's efforts in formulating the Department of Defense quality control and reliability program. Others were cited for their contributions to industry-quality control through Aircraft and Missile Division activities.

Others recipients were David R. Archibald, Convair Astronautics Division; John T. Bailey, Bell Aircraft Corporation; Robert C. Draudt, North American Aviation; Dr. Max Astrachan, USAF Institute of Technology, Wright-Patterson AFB; William F. Morgan, Sperry-Farragut Company; John W. Gower, Dayton, Ohio, engineer-attorney; William E. Smith, National Cash Register Company, and George B. Westerhaus, Beech Aircraft Corporation.

Test Doppler Radar On NAA Vigilante

A precision Doppler radar "navigator" designed to pinpoint enemy targets for the Navy's North American A3J Vigilante attack bomber is now being tested.

Developed by Raytheon Company for the North American Aviation Corporation, the navigator computes the plane's position and supplies other essential bombing and navigation data. Latitude and longitude are continuously computed by measuring true ground speed and aircraft direction. This is done by detecting small shifts in radar echoes frequency from the earth's surface. Special information for the bombing system is also computed automatically.

'Nearly Automatic' F-105D Flies Early

The new all-weather model of the USAF Republic F-105 Thunderchief made a successful first flight at Farmingdale, L. I., recently (9 June), more than a month ahead of schedule.

L. L. Brabham, Republic vice president in charge of flight operations, reported the hour-long maiden hop of the "nearly automatic" fighter-bomber (F-105D). He said that Test Pilot Lindell Hendrix reported the plane's performance as "completely satisfactory, not one major crab (complaint)."

A "most powerful" tag was applied to the earlier F-105B or day model more than a year ago by General O. P. Weyland, commander of the USAF's Tactical Air Command which is being equipped with the new aircraft.

R. L. Hirsch Named Aerojet D. C. Mgr.

Appointment of Robert L. Hirsch as Manager of Aerojet-General Corporation's Washington, D. C., office has been announced by William L. Gore, Vice President-Customer Relations.

The headquarters of all liaison with the military departments, space agencies, and the Atomic Energy Commission, the Washington office is a key spot in Aerojet - General's Customer Relations organization. As Manager, Hirsch is responsible for obtaining and analyzing the requirements of Aerojet's Washington customers at the policy level and coordinating this information with Aerojet management.

Hirsch, a graduate of the University of Southern California, has been with Aerojet since 1943, first as a development engineer and later as a development chemist and engineer in both the Liquid and Solid Rocket Divisions prior to going to Washington two years ago.

Mr. Hirsch

Generators For Missiles

Generator sets manufactured by Stewart and Stevenson Services, Inc. of Houston, Tex., are being used by the Air Force, Army, and Navy to blast off and guide a variety of missiles in the defense and space programs.

At Fort Bliss, Tex., Stewart & Stevenson generator sets power the radar system which provides a beam for the Nike Hercules. Likewise, on the West Coast, the generators provide radar power for the Marine Corps' "Terrier Missile." In connection with missiles such as the Atlas, Navajo and Redstone, which are launched at Cape Canaveral, the Stewart & Stevenson units power missile control guidance systems, provide electricity for radar tracking devices and offer necessary checkout power while the missiles are being readied for launching.

Interavia ABC Expands To Include Astronautics

A name change has been recorded for the 1959 edition of "Interavia ABC," which formerly was described as a "Directory of World Aviation" (Geneva, II, Switzerland; Interavia, $12.)

This year, the editors of the 1410-page volume have enlarged its title to designate it as the "World Directory of Aviation and Astronautics." According to the editors, the 1959 edition has been 60% revised, with new headings to assist readers in locating "the various companies which are becoming more and more numerous in the field of astronautics."

Like its predecessors, the directory is divided into four main sections: The Alphabet, listing the world's civil and military aviation authorities, organizations, airlines, manufacturers and all other types of aeronautical activity; The Analyst, including addresses, telephone numbers and products of all firms listed in The Alphabet; The Indicator, a cross-referenced, five language glossary of about 1,000 aeronautical items; and Who Is Where section, containing an alphabetical list of the world's top aviation personalities, officers and executives.

High-Energy Fuel For AF

THE Air Force has contracted with Callery Chemical Company, Pittsburgh, Pa., to supply HiCal, a boron-based high-energy fuel, for a classified military project. Delivery of the fuel will begin immediately from the firm's Lawrence, Kansas, plant, where entire production previously has been utilized by the Navy.

So you want instruments?

Aero Commander has them!

Aero Commander provides capacity for a full complement of navigation and communications instrumentation. Available amperage output is more than ample and there's panel enough for everything including electronic controls and radar scanner.

The functional design of the Aero Commander panel provides quick, easy access to all instrument installations. Pilot and co-pilot section are hinged to tilt down, exposing entire installation. Engine panel lifts out upon releasing quick locking screws. Adding to space adequacy, the ADF control head is mounted below the panel in a pedestal type quadrant.

Aero Commander is ideal for instrument training—or flight training. It's well suited and thoroughly capable for logistics support, light utility, personnel transport, photo reconnaissance—for virtually any non-combat military use.

And the superiority of Aero Commander performance and stability is a matter of record. Complete details will be furnished upon request.

"White Charger" Hearings Begin; "Hump" Bill Delayed; Merger Possibilities Fade

• The Defense Department disclosed that the next Navy selection board to name medical corps commanders for promotion to captain has been authorized to select all but five per cent of the eligible officers.

• Senator Howard W. Cannon (D-Nev.) protested the practice of granting honorary retirement promotions to Navy and Marine Corps officers without extending the same privilege to those in the Army and Air Force.

• The Pentagon promised to explore the possibility of setting a limitation on the number of lieutenant colonels/commanders who can be forced to retire under the White Charger provisions. A limitation of 20 per cent is provided for colonels/captains, but no similar provision is made for those in lower grades.

• The Air Force, which expects to make greater use of the White Charger legislation than the other three services, disclosed its plan for implementing the program.

Air Force officers who have been considered for promotion to permanent colonels at least five times will be considered for involuntary retirement this year if the proposal becomes law. Between 100 and 200 permanent lieutenant colonels will be retired.

About 25 permanent colonels also will be retired. They will be selected from a zone made up of about 200 officers who were promoted to permanent in 1948, '49 and '50.

Maj. Gen. R. W. Porter, jr., Director of Military Personnel Management for the Army, said the Army has no immediate requirement for the legislation but feels that it will provide useful authority "for possible further contingencies."

Senator Cannon tackled the "honorary promotions" inequities of present law which permit the Navy and Marine Corps to advance officers on the retired lists if they have received combat decorations, but deny such advantages to the officers of the Army and Air Force.

He cited statistics to show that of 1,420 rear admirals now on the Navy's retired list only 198 ever served on active duty in their presently retired rank. He said there also are 154 three-star officers and 33 four-star officers on the Navy's retired list who never served in those grades while on active duty.

Assistant Secretary of Defense Charles C. Finucane said the Defense Department does not favor the Navy-Marine Corps law and believes that it "depreciates the rank." Rather than extend it to the Army and Air Force, he said, the Pentagon would recommend its repeal. He noted, however, that the authority eventually will "eliminate itself," because there now remain on active duty only 2,440 officers who could be affected by it. And, he said, it is difficult to wipe a long standing law off the books because it would deprive some officers "of something they feel they are entitled to."

A House Armed Services Committee spokesman said it has not been decided whether the House will take up the "White Charger" measure this session, provided it passes the Senate within the next few weeks, but added that such action is possible.

The "White Charger" bill, establishing new promotion and retirement criteria for all of the Armed Forces, is one of the Pentagon's "priority" measures.

The "hump" plan, already approved by the House, may undergo major revisions in the Senate. The Pentagon, pressured by the Budget Bureau, has announced its opposition to the House provision establishing separation pay for Navy and Marine Corps officers who are forced into early retirement under the "hump" bill procedures. There is little chance, under the circumstances, that the Senate will retain this authority.

Approximately 1735 Navy captains, 1245 commanders, 395 Marine Corps colonels and 705 lieutenant colonels will be forced to retire under the terms of the "hump" plan. They each will lose up to $6000 in separation pay if the House proposal is killed.

Further details of the Senate hearings on both bills will be told in future issues of THE JOURNAL.

Honored By Japan

MRS. John A. Elterich admires the medal recently conferred by the Emperor of Japan to her Army colonel husband, the former U. S. Army Japan deputy chief of staff for post activities and special assistant to the commanding general. Colonel Elterich was presented the "Order of the Sacred Treasure, Third Order of Merit" in Yokohama, Japan, by Kanagawa Prefecture Governor Iwataro Uchiyama, becoming the first foreigner in Japan to receive the award for direct assistance and aid to the Japanese people.

A FLEET OF CAT DW21s RUSHES A 12,000-FT. B-52 RUNWAY

The throaty roar of 20 fast-stepping Caterpillar DW21s mingled with the whine of B-52 Strategic Air Command bombers at Beale Air Force Base, Marysville, Calif. They were building a 12,000-foot runway for the big birds. The DW21s loaded, hauled and dumped rock and clay 18 hours a day. Contractors were: R. A. Westbrook, Inc., Morrison-Knudsen Co., Inc., and H. Earle Parker, Inc.

And now the DW21 is more powerful, more efficient, and more productive than ever. A new model (Series G) is available with a new 345 HP (maximum output) Super-Turbo Engine. It hits top speeds of 22.6 MPH quickly for high-speed hauling. Matched to the Cat LOWBOWL Scraper it gives you fast loading of 19.5 cu. yd. struck, 27 heaped.

The Super-Turbo Engine incorporates a new Air Induction System, unique in diesel engine turbocharging. The new engine packs more air, aided by twin dry-type air cleaners and larger manifolds and an After-Cooler. In addition, a Pressure Ratio Control System broadens the performance of the Turbocharger over a complete range of operating speeds.

Today the Caterpillar DW21 is the most economical buy in its class on the market. It is faster and stronger. And with the new exclusive Torsionflex seat (optional), operator efficiency is greatly increased. See it soon. The sooner you get the powerful new DW21 in action, the sooner you'll start getting bigger production on your job.
